Home starts gather speed

Georgetown homebuilding continued an upward spiral during March, as the City Building Inspection Department recorded 19 new home starts in and around town.

The total number of new homes, begun the first quarter of the Bicentennial Year ends, stands at 67, just four less than last year's figure and already one home more than the total for all of 1974.

Fifteen new single-family homes approved in March will be built inside the city limits. Eleven are planned for San Gabriel Heights, one for Quail Meadows I, one for Country Club IV, and two for the Urban Renewal area.

Four homes are to be constructed in Serepada Estates, outside the city limits.

Value of the residences ranges between $16,000 and $40,000.

In 1975, 71 new home starts were noted, 66 in 1974, and 73 during 1973.

TOTAL VALUE of new construction approved in March was $509,965.

Twenty-eight permits were issued by the Building Inspection Department, including 15 for the new homes within city limits, valued together at a total of $492,400. Six alterations or additions to dwellings were approved, and two for commercial buildings. One home moving permits was issued.

As of the end of the first quarter, $1,485,863 worth of new construction within city limits has been approved. Only $894,585.95 worth had been approved at the end of 1975's first quarter, and the city ended last year with a record $5,482,983 in new construction.

Permits for 23 new homes valued at a total of $471,048 were issued in January. In February, 20 new home starts were recorded at a value of $362,926.

BLOWN' IN THE WIND — Thursday afternoon was rough for piccolo players trying to be beat a stiff southerly wind. But this trio (from left, Sally Suh of Georgetown High School, and Jennifer Aaron and Jane Robbins from Southwestern University) battled gallantly on through the piccolo solo in John Phillip Sousa's rouser, "The Stars and Stripes Forever." A combined GHS-SU band performed an entire Sousa concert, with other patriotic pieces by various composers, for a crowd on the east lawn and steps of the Williamson County Courthouse.

THE BIG BRASS was also on hand for the Sousa concert, belting out the bass lines of favorite marches. The Bicentennial event, sponsored by the Georgetown Bi-C Committee, featured student directors Albert Ainsworth from Southwestern University and Georgetown High School.

Mayor Doerfler plans steady course

by BUDDY ADAMS

Georgetown's new Mayor, John C. Doerfler, does not reveal plans for any major changes in the city's course as he begins a two-year term in the highest local office.

Relaxing between his day's work and a City Council meeting Monday night, Doerfler said past city fathers have steered Georgetown in the right direction. He wants the city to maintain steady progress in the same direction.

Elected just three weeks ago, the Mayor is still settling into his new job. He hasn't had much time to assess the demands made daily on the mayor of a city of over 8,000 residents. But already, he's dealing with a zoning flap and General Telephone Company's request for a rate increase. Of course, he can become the main man-on-the-spot when citizens are not satisfied.

But Doerfler says there really isn't too much difference between being a City Councilman, the post he held for the past eleven months, and being Mayor.

"It's about what I expected it would be," he commented. "It just takes more time — you have to go to more extracurricular stuff."

He says the rest of the Council gets feedback too. "Most of the Council is pretty representative, and they get their share of complaints," noted the Mayor. "The first couple of weeks I was on the Council, I got more calls and complaints, then it kind of tapered off to a steady level."

A hometown boy, Doerfler sees Georgetown as a place not dramatically changed in his lifetime, though the world around it heads toward what social scientists call "future shock."

"Down deep, it's basically the same town I grew up in," he says. "I guess the major difference I see is that I used to know everyone I saw on the street, and now I don't."

"But it's a town making progress," he adds, allowing that his election is one proof of a changed attitude.

"Ten years ago, I probably wouldn't have been

DST starts April 25

Here we go again.

Already this year we confused readers by telling them Daylight Savings Time was going to begin at such and such a time, only to have Congress make a liar of us because the House couldn't get around to holding hearings.

Since Congress has been biding its time on the bill that will move the hour hand forward, Americans must wait until next Sunday, April 25, to get the extra hour of summer daylight.

So while we're waiting for DST April 25, that final project of the day will have to wait as darkness descends an hour earlier than it would have had our representatives gotten around to deciding what time it is and what time it's gonna be.

But now it is definitely official: move your clock forward one hour at 2 a.m. next Sunday and get ready for a little extra outdoor work or play.

the passing glance

By Don Scarbrough

It was moist and cool Friday morning but KGTN people were sweating! They are yearning for a fair day for their Easter Egg scramble and the signs weren't favorable.

BUDDY ADAMS, one of our star reporters, covered the city council this week and quoted Councilman Gold as saying something about the telephone system here made him hotter than "a deep old stove." Young as he is, Buddy never heard of a depot stove, a round-bellied, coal burning heater people crowded around while they waited for the train to arrive. When you shook the grate and the draw was working, the belly of the stove turned red and sometimes white. That's how hot Harry gets when he can't get the phone company to take care of his telephone troubles.

It's a shame, but unless someone steps forward with considerable cash, the once fine old George Giasscock (Jr.) home at the intersection of Austin Avenue North and Andice Road will be torn down. That's the latest word from developer Bobby Stanton, who owns the place. Some months ago an Austin couple thought they would tackle the job of buying, moving and renovating it, but changed their mind when the estimates were added up. It would take a lot of money to do the job, but once accomplished, the results would be a matter of great pride to whoever did it. It could be turned into a showplace. It's still sound structurally, the windows slide up and down like the place was built a year ago.

Week's news in a nutshell

Billionaire Howard Hughes died of neglect, a Mexican doctor who attended the recluse just prior to his death, said this week.

"Hughes was a human wreck. . . his body was covered with bedsores. . . the gravity of the patient's condition was not due to a recent illness but more to bad treatment," the doctor was quoted. So, it appears that all the wealth in the world couldn't buy Hughes a little loving care in his final months. Doesn't speak too well for money, does it?

A 12 YEAR OLD Austin girl was stabbed many times, raped and left to die in a brushy vacant lot near her South Austin home Wednesday afternoon. No suspects, Austin police admit.

The Round Rock Leader increased its subscription to $6.50 for a year or $3.50 for 6 months, explaining that in the past two years printing cost has increased by 45 per cent, postage has gone up 62 per cent, with more increases scheduled. The Rockdale Reporter announced it was going to 20 cents on single copy sales.

PATTY HEARST was rushed to a hospital with a suddenly collapsed lung Tuesday evening in the San Mateo County Jail. She underwent surgery in less than hours later and is reported to be recovering, although in considerable pain.

President Ford and R. Reagan have been busy in Texas and observers believe they are running almost neck-to-neck, with Reagan's neck stuck out just a little farther than Ford's. Ex-governor John Connally is calmly observing it from his comfortable

Walk the wilderness

by NEL PERSKY

The newly-leaved trees rustle in the intangible breeze wafting over our heads. Grass ripples, whispering around our footsteps.

A bird calls. But all else is still as we walk the wilderness. Then, as the pathway slopes toward the nearby river, where quiet pools glimpsed from above gleam serenely, a new sound bubbles into the fresh world around us.

Never loud, the cadence faintly swells, becoming recognizable just as the path bursts upon a full view of the river.

A waterfall. Spring-fed from the steep bluff, it gurgles over large rocks and ridges, sending its soft music along the smooth-worn rocks and past new-green trees into the clear blueness of spring air.

AND FOR US, who had not known such an experience existed so near our daily routine of work, the world was new.

For persons who have never taken the time or found the spot to try some hiking, Williamson County terrain offers a wonder of hiking country for the novice.

Still surrounding the North Fork Lake construction are open walkways and challenging bluffs through which the ever-changing San Gabriel River meanders enticingly, offering glimpses of flashing, tumbling rills to delight tired eyes and still pools to ease weary feet.

The four of us were certainly a motley sight among the melded greenness and surrounding blue that was the harmonious world around us.

But we left that world as we found it, uncluttered and clean, and it left us happier, enjoying the memory of natural beauty and human camaraderie.

We had taken tips from Dr. Connie Venable, director of placement in career counseling at Southwestern and an avid hiker who has himself walked over nearly all the North Fork area, so made it home blisterless and ready for more.

"Wear some sort of visor or cap — a visor and cloth, not a headscarf," he advised.

HATS, Venable had said, so hats we wore. A straw gardening hat for me.

And for our favorite ten-year-old, Kristin, her own hand-made floppy brim, compliments of a kit from her grandmother, Elsa Kneten of Bartlett.

A battered cowpoke hat my husband Ronnie had salvaged from a closet bottom.

And one bright green almost-like-what-was-recommended hat worn by another fine friend, Charles Bielss.

We are all from Bartlett, and we had come to see the sights of western Williamson County.

It was only as I aimed my camera that I realized we had become one of the most amusing sights to be found in that peaceful blue-and-green wilderness world.

"COMFORTABLE CLOTHES, not too tight — you're going to sweat a little," Venable had said. So there we were in jeans and cotton shirts. Comfortable.

No shorts. The country becomes brushy, demanding the greater protection of long pants and a long-sleeved shirt.

"I recommend — and this is a matter of taste — long trousers and long-sleeved shirts, particularly if you are going to be anything like off the beaten path. There are enough briars, especially in Texas, that even if you are looking you are going to get scratched.

"The problem with the miracle fibers they are not very absorbent, so cotton is generally much more comfortable for our climate," Venable advised.

Rain splatters Williamson County

Winds gusting to 50 mph and trumpeting thunder and spattering rains combined with intermittent flashes of lightning brightened the otherwise gloomy Texas horizon to create the perfect setting for a whodunit mystery — or typical Texas weather.

No wind damage was reported, although rain varied throughout the county, with Georgetown receiving .9; Taylor, .71; Hutto, .83; Round Rock, .72; Granger, .94 and Andice, 1.05 inches.

The rains are good for the wheat, but not for sorghum and cotton crops, Assistant County Extension Agent Edward Wilkie reported.

The Austin weather service reported more showers through Saturday night, with a fair Sunday in the forecast.

Paul Harvey

Icky weather does make you feel bushed. You'd thought so. You've suffered rainy day blues. You've known that dreary weather tends to make you feel dreary. Now science knows it.

Homer McKee, the old Hoosier philosopher, used to say, "Who cares what the weather's like out there as long as the sun's shining in here."

BUT IT DOES make a difference.

John Askins researched for Chicago's Tribune and discovered children do better in school when the barometer is rising.

Most riots occur when it's hot and humid.

More factory accidents occur before storms.

A cyclone on the way — before it gets to you — may trigger emotional disturbances.

Science now knows that meteorological factors do influence human behavior but it doesn't know why.

You and I, fascinated by the subject of electrophysiology, are entitled to suspect some electrical short circuitry but we can't prove it.

WHAT CAN BE PROVED is this: a relationship between lunar cycles and suicides and homicides. Wright Institute, Berkeley, Calif., has established "a definite relationship," blames it on weather conditions which accompany the moon's phases.

Dr. John Valentine studied hospital records in Philadelphia and found that weather has a discernible impact on psychiatric admissions: high barometric pressure produces depression; low barometric pressure tends to increase the number of drug and alcohol addition admissions.

All we have to go on so far are statistics. In Europe, where human response to environmental factors is studied much more seriously, there is growing belief that weather conditions influence a wide variety of physical diseases — everything from hernia to cancer.

The problem in making more specific cause-effect delineation is complicated by the fascinating fact that different people react differently to weather. You are stimulated by Florida's wet warmth; I feel exhilarated in Arizona's dryness.

SOME RESEARCHERS have tried to classify people into "K-types" and "W-types" — those who are sensitive to cold and those who are sensitive to warmth.

Researcher Askins expects that your TV weather forecaster may one day be able to specify that "Tomorrow will be a good day for 'k-types.'"

Meteorologist Helmut Lundberg theorizes that we are all preconditioned to responses which are left over from primitive times; that we are geared to respond favorably to the kind of weather to which our ancestors were acclimated.

But there is increasing evidence that the human response is more specific than that. More people suffer detached retinas in June — few in the wintertime.

The incidence of glaucoma is highest after a cold front passes.

Calcium, phosphorus and magnesium levels in the blood are lowest in February.

YOUR HAIR, FINGERNAILS and children grow more slowly in wintertime.

But the most significant conclusion on which there is anything approaching a consensus is that whatever factors affect your thoughts, moods and emotions also affect your body — and vice versa.

'Stop Ford, Carter' time running out

Primaries reaching 'last chance' stage

By Godfrey Sperling Jr.
Staff correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor

Washington
The primaries have reached the "final roadblock" stage, where President Ford and Jimmy Carter will have to be stopped — if they are to be stopped.

First and foremost are the upcoming Pennsylvania and Texas primaries where on-the-scene reporters provide this assessment:

• Pennsylvania (April 27) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson could slow down the Carter momentum here. It seems that he must if he is to stay in the race himself. But President Ford is uncontested here.

• Texas (May 1) — The general feeling is that Ronald Reagan leads Mr. Ford by five percent and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen is still ahead in the Democratic primary although dropping back a bit. Mr. Carter and Senator Jackson are neck and neck behind Senator Bentsen.

A significant stirring in the wings comes from Hubert Humphrey, who clearly is looking for a way to inject himself into the Democratic race.

While Senator Jackson was taking the largest number of delegates in New York (though less than the majority he said he would win), it was Senator Humphrey who may have scored the strongest.

A private Harris poll shows that 77 percent of the 65 "uncommitted" delegates selected favor Senator Humphrey. Further, a large number of the other delegates selected have told reporters that, at heart, they really favor Senator Humphrey.

The two primaries, one on the Eastern seaboard (New York) and the other in the nation's breadbasket (Wisconsin), carried this significance:

— Rep. Morris K. Udall, by almost beating Mr. Carter in Wisconsin and by finishing second to Senator Jackson in the delegate race in New York, does stay alive as the "progressive" candidate. But he now is hanging on by his fingernails.

— The President's win in Wisconsin was solid but not impressive — 55 to 44 percent over Mr. Reagan. But when Mr. Ford adds the massive bloc of delegates he picked up in New York (the "uncommitted" delegates probably will be his at the convention), he has had a very good day at the polls.

Each time the President wins he gives further weight to the argument that he is, indeed, the Republican most likely to beat the Democrats in the fall. Each new Ford victory causes more and more Republicans who have been undecided to go for their President, experts believe.

— Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace now is clearly out of contention for the nomination. The question now arises: Where do Wallace supporters go when they decide they no longer have a viable candidate? Henry Jackson may become the main beneficiary of the Wallace vote.

— Jimmy Carter picked up considerable momentum in Wisconsin, despite his razor-edge victory. Why? Because of the way the vote came in and the early TV projections of a Udall win.

Although the "apparent" Udall victory was a fiction, Mr. Carter was able to achieve an "upset victory" which gave him more weight and importance than it would have received if Mr. Carter had been projected as the winner from the outset.

Looking ahead at some of the other important primaries, there are these assessments from reporters on the scene:

Pennsylvania — "Jackson has a tremendous organization. He has the [Mayor Frank] Rizzo organization in the east and the steelworkers in the west and southwest sections. But Carter will be campaigning hard now — also Udall."

Louisiana (May 1) — "Looks like a three-way split among Carter, Wallace, and the uncommitted vote. Wallace would have won this primary easily not too long ago."

Texas — "Ford might turn this around by campaigning hard. He will be in this weekend."

Georgia (May 4) — "Carter should win. And Reagan may have edge. But President through hard work here, might win."

Indiana (May 4) — "Probably Ford. But Reagan could do very well. Depends a lot on what happens in Texas. Jackson and Carter seem neck and neck."

Nebraska (May 11) — "Carter's appeal with farmers and Midwesterners (shown in Illinois and Wisconsin) should give him edge here. Ford, too, had Midwestern support, and this probably will carry over into Nebraska."

Michigan (May 18) — "Polls shows there is as much as 15 percent of Republicans who will vote for Ford simply because of homestate pride. So he should win. Democratic side now muddled."

Oregon (May 25) — "Still much too early to say. But important to note that Hubert Humphrey on ballot here. He just might win."

CAN'T READ THE NEWS FOR SEEING...
this beautiful Good Friday. "Sitting in our front-porch swing at 7 o'clock this glorious morning — everything freshly bathed with the cleansing rain He sent us last night — I had planned to read the morning paper and have my coffee, but nature's beauties (fortunately) keep interrupting. Three or four (they move so swiftly) hummingbirds challenging one another to take a sip of the ruby-red syrup in our feeders; a mockingbird resting briefly in our neighbor's young Mimosa; Mr. Blue Jay perched on the electric light line, "I wonder what he's 'checking out'?" Sparrows hopping about on the damp street looking for a bite of breakfast, I suppose.

To the southeast a green hilltop is blanketed with this 1976 spring's newly-clothed trees and a field of young maize. Enjoy, enjoy, for too soon another home will be built on that corner and block part of that beautiful view.

It's a partly-cloudy morning, but the sun is going to win — I see it shining through and it makes the clouds look like sparkling snow, lined with sky blue.

"Tiny", our next-door neighbor's terrier just dropped by for a short visit and our daughter's beautiful Calico cat, Miss Kitty (oops, Mrs. Kitty) watches all from atop our built-on planter which has burst into bloom: red petunias, lavender, pink and purple candytuft, red Kalenchoe and nonblooming but beautifully colored Joseph's Coat!

It's 8 a.m. now and the young boys across the street have come out to enjoy this wondrous Good Friday — oh! at that same moment the sun came out briefly. "Mrs. Kitty" is watching them and listening; they are playing "gasoline station" and their bikes are make-believe motorcycles.

'Could write on, and on; but there's so much to see and do — must go see "Lady Bird", the Cardinal who built a nest in Jane's hanging basket — she's so lucky — Jane and Lady Bird both, really. Also want to take Grandpa some tomato plants and plant them for him, etc. etc.

Thank you God for another (my 50th) breathtaking spring and Good Friday.

Eve Roseleaf

P.S. 11:45. It's cloudy and misting — I was wrong about the sun's victory, but welcome the drink for the plants, trees and animal life.

Down to the wire

"Two weeks to go!"

Campaigners are sure to be telling themselves that as they gird for the final and most important days to their campaigns.

We have, as everyone surely ought to know by now, four important and interesting county-wide contests and quite a few precinct races in progress.

THE TWO-MAN CONTEST for the big prize, the District Judgeship, is being sought by Attorneys Bill Lott and Tim Maresh and both men are waging vigorous campaigns.

And, of course, the races for District and County Attorney are no less vital to the interests of this county and its people. A local street survey indicates most observers believe Billy Stubblefield is leading for County Attorney, with Edward Walsh and incumbent Norman Manning mighty close in the District Attorney race. No one, of course, is counting out Jack Webernick, Bill Sterling or Jean Loving. They could come in like gang-busters!

OUR UNGUARANTEED survey indicates Sheriff August Bosshard is leading his race, although some think he is eyeing Dale Swofford with considerable concern. Johnny Roepke is the third man of that contest, and he, too, is reported to be making a strong effort and could gain a lot of ground in the final days.

Certainly one of the most interesting of the races is the 9 man scramble for Precinct Number 1 Commissioner, to replace Wes Johnson who chose not to run for re-election. There are good men in this contest and, regardless of which of them wins, the precinct will be well represented on this vitally important board.

WHEN THE TIME COMES, we hope Georgetown will go to the polls with the same determination and strength that it displayed in school and city elections recently. In these days, when we turn more and more to Austin and Washington for help, the town that votes the strongest gets the most attention from its elected representatives.

And, once again, if we are to have responsible government it will be because all of us, individually, do our best to choose the most qualified people to run our business.

Jack Anderson Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON — The controversial book about Richard Nixon's last days in the White House has been sent to the former President in San Clemente. The book was written by the two Watergate reporters, Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein.

From sources who have spoken with Nixon, we can report that the former President is absolutely livid. He immediately tried to figure out who had given Woodward and Bernstein the derogatory details. Nixon told callers that he blamed his former defense secretary, Mel Laird.

Laird moved into the White House during those last days for a final fling as the President's domestic adviser. Nixon has told friends that he didn't want Laird in the White House, that he was pressured by congressional leaders to take him.

Then Laird and his congressional friends brought additional pressure upon Nixon to appoint Gerald Ford as Vice President. Nixon really wanted former Treasury Secretary John Connally. Afterward, Nixon was angry at himself for appointing Ford.

Now Nixon suspects that Laird spied on him during those last days. Laird left the White House six months before Nixon resigned but left a protégé behind. The protégé, William Baroody Jr., is still in the White House. Nixon believes Baroody continued to pass inside information to Laird.

Nixon is convinced that Laird furnished this information to Woodward and Bernstein. We have spoken to both Laird and Baroody. They admit they were interviewed by the authors but denied giving any derogatory information.

Several other people, who were mentioned in the book, have called Nixon at San Clemente to assure him they did not reveal the embarrassing information. Among those who telephoned Nixon were both Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Secretary of the Treasury William Simon.

Nixon's son-in-law, David Eisenhower, also confessed that he had talked privately with the authors. But young Eisenhower denied saying anything derogatory.

The angry Nixon has asked his secretary, Diane Sawyer, to prepare a detailed point-by-point rebuttal of the Woodward-Bernstein book.

Meanwhile, the previous Woodward and Bernstein bestseller, "All the President's Men," has been turned into a movie by the same title which depicts how the two young reporters helped to expose the Watergate scandal.

The movie doesn't answer the question that still has Washington buzzing: Who is "Deep Throat"? Woodward identified his best source only as "Deep Throat." He's too sharp a reporter to reveal his confidential sources, but we think we know who "Deep Throat" is.

We conducted a parallel investigation of the Watergate scandal. Although the target of the Watergate break-in, Larry O'Brien, complained that the press ignored Watergate in 1972, he added, "The major exceptions to this were the Washington Post's Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein and columnist Jack Anderson."

So we were familiar with the development of the Watergate story. We recognized the facts that Woodward and Bernstein published. We had access to the same basic facts. We knew, therefore, where the information was coming from.

Woodward and Bernstein published facts that were available only in the Washington field office of the FBI. Our own sources in the Washington field office told us at the time that they didn't trust the acting FBI chief, Pat Gray. They also didn't trust anyone in the White House. Therefore, they held back findings that we and the Woodward-Bernstein team were able to get.

So "Deep Throat" had to be a source inside the FBI's field office. We have a pretty good idea who it is, but this is as much as we're willing to reveal.

We are pointing the finger now, not to embarrass those FBI agents but to give them credit. They were under tremendous pressure from the White House to suppress the Watergate investigation. Even some of their own superiors tried to slow them down.

White House aides lied to them. The Central Intelligence Agency tried to mislead them. Yet they could not be intimidated and they could not be corrupted. The nation owes a great deal to those unsung FBI field agents.

Decision to build Grace Episcopal made Easter Monday 1881

The Grace Episcopal Church at 1316 East University Avenue has been referred to as the "gem-like" church of Georgetown, and is one of the town's oldest.

Built in 1881 in the carpenter-Gothic style, this fine, small building has an unusual Norman entrance tower terminated by four corner finials with fleur-de-lis ornaments. The church originally stood in downtown Georgetown on Main Street, near Tenth. In time it was surrounded by commercial buildings so the decision was made to move the building to its present site, facing the Southwestern University campus. The move was made in April 1955. To insure the safety of the belfry, it was transported separately from the remainder of the building.

The church had its origins in 1868 when Bishop Alexander Gregg organized a mission here. Occasional ser-

A historic tour of some of Georgetown's finest old homes and churches will be conducted by Georgetown's Bicentennial Commission on May 1 and 2, Saturday and Sunday afternoons from 2 to 5 p.m. The public is invited to purchase tickets for $2.50 each for the guided tour, which was planned by Mrs. Thatcher Atkin. Tickets can be obtained from Mr. and Mrs. Mearl Leffler, Route 1, Georgetown, or the Georgetown Chamber of Commerce. When ordering by mail, please send stamped, self-addressed envelope for return of tour ticket and folder. Tickets may also be purchased at the Book Store of Student Union Building, Southwestern University, and at the Williamson County Sun offices. This article is one in a series featuring the homes and churches to be visited during the Bicentennial tour.

VICES had been held in local homes and churches prior to 1868, one such meeting being mentioned in 1860 in an early Presbyterian Church.

When the cornerstone for the present building was laid in 1881, a metal box of documents was placed in it. Among these papers was a list of the five original members of the church when it became a mission. Colonel W. H. Henderson, Captain F. L. Price, Miss Annie Price, Mrs. M. I. Beall, and Miss Callie Beall (who later became Mrs. Price). Also in the box were copies of the Georgetown RECORD, the Williamson County SUN, and the Galveston Daily NEWS. These same papers were replaced in a box in the cornerstone at this location.

According to the SUN of April 21, 1881, formal organization of Grace Church took place on "Easter Monday" with 29 members participating. The name, Grace Church, was adopted. Vestrymen elected were F. L. Price, T. W. Stratton, J. M. Murch, T. E. Hartwell, Oliver Steele, R. H. Price, S. M. Henderson, C. Morelle, O. L. Spencer, and J. N. Price. Rev. J. E. Meredith was rector in charge. that same year, it was reported that the vestry had rented Taylor's Hall, a recreational-dance hall on second floor of Emzy Taylor's business building on the Square, to hold meetings until the Grace Church was completed. The cornerstone was laid November 16, 1881, on a corner lot "South of Capt. A. S. Fisher's residence," according to the local newspaper.

The interior has a vaulted ceiling finished in beaded panelling, and the wainscoting repeats the beaded material which here is run diagonally, thus harmonizing with the lines of the pointed windows. Symbolic emblems of the church are abundantly utilized in architectural details, furnishings and accessories of the interior. These symbols include the St. Andrews and saltire crosses, the trefoil, botonee, fleur-de-lis and fleury forms. Braces on the ceiling beams are cut out in forms which resemble flying doves.

A member of the church, Mrs. Lillian Peavey, has needlepointed kneeling cushion covers for the altar rail in symbols of the Apostles, recent additions to a church replete with traditions and symbolism.

At the left is Tony Meeks, director of education for TAR. Part of the grant will be used to establish a real estate library at Southwestern, while the other part will be used by Dr. Colwell in studies on real estate next year.

Hutto bond bids due

Bids for $400,000 worth of Hutto school district bonds will be received by the district's trustees at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the administration building on the Hutto campus.

District voters last August approved the bond sale to finance construction of a new cafetorium-library-classroom complex adjacent the present Hutto school and new athletic dressing rooms.

Interest on bond bids is not to exceed 7.25 percent.

The new facilities were designed by Bob Penrose and Associates of Austin.

The new complex will feature a cafetorium and a library to serve all Hutto students, and science, homemaking, and vocational education classrooms for high school students.

The cafetorium, which will seat 382 persons, will have 12-foot ceilings and a 15 by 24-foot stage. Athletic dressing rooms, which will be connected to the school gymnasium, will have separate shower and dressing areas for boys and girls, offices for athletic directors, a laundry room, a training room, and issue and storage rooms.

The new facilities were designed by Bob Penrose and Associates of Austin.

Six young musicians from Georgetown and Round Rock were guest pianists for a program given for the Taylor Music Club honoring Mrs. J. H. Young at the Wesleyan Home in Georgetown Wednesday at 3:30 p.m.

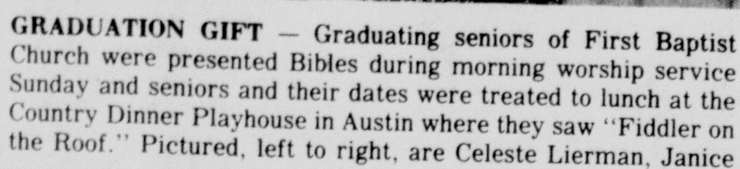

Performing works by Bach, Beethoven, Clementi, Debussy, Chopin, Gillock and Glover were Laura Duncan, Diana Hidalgo, Kirsten Peterson, Gretchen Peterson, all of Georgetown, and Rhonda Porter and Jan Cowan from Round Rock. They have been studying in the Preparatory Piano Department in the School of Fine Arts at Southwestern University with Mrs. Jane Lansford of the music faculty.

The honoree, Mrs. Young (formerly Mrs. Voiers of Taylor), has delighted many people with her piano and organ playing through the years. The members of the Taylor Music Club wished, in turn, to honor her. A well-educated person with music as her chief interest, Mrs. Young's contributions to the music field have been enormous.

Spanning about a half-century of teaching piano, Mrs. Young's pupils have done well as they have continued their music education through college and beyond as they have made their contributions in the music field.

Active in area music circles.
Mrs. Young has been a member of the Taylor Music Club for many years. She and her husband are living at the Wesleyan Home.

So many of us are afflicted with arthritis, both young and old, that you will be interested in this quote from the head of research in arthritis and connective tissues from the Lilly Laboratories for Clinical Research: "Because there is no cure for the disease, many people with arthritis feel it won't do any good to see a doctor and, instead, become the victim of quacks -- to the tune of $400 million a year -- while others just quietly suffer. It is important that persons with arthritis know that treatment by a physician can often bring relief and reduce or prevent disability, he said."

HUTTO NEWS

BY PATT GANTT

CALENDAR OF EVENTS
April 16-19, School Holiday.
April 23-24, Regional U.I.L. Meet.

April 26, Tuesday Club
April 27, P-TC in School Auditorium, 7:30 p.m.

The Junior Class of Hutto High School presented the play, "Up the Down Staircase" Saturday evening in the school auditorium.

Mrs. Charles Morris directed the Bel Kaufman play.

Scene of the play was Calvin Coolidge High School in New York City at the present time. The budding new teacher, played aptly by Sherryl Finn was determined to cope with her situation at least until the end of the first term. However her contemplations of going to a quiet, small college to teach were put away as the play ends with "teach" Sylvia Barrett beginning the second term to the delight of her previous surly students.

Steve Priest played the part of the high school principal, Dr. Maxwell Clarke.

Bea Schacter and Paul Barringer were other faculty members and they were played by Tanya Nygrin and Jamie Lantzsch.

Members of the school staff included J. J. McHabe played by John Stern; Ella Friedenberg played by Pam Brisco; Frances Eagan played by Rose Aguilar; Charlotte Wolf played by Lupe Aguilar; Samuel Bester played by Greg Almquist; and Sadie Finch played by Tammy Whitt.

The students of Room 304 were Lou Martin played by Steve Morgan; Lennie Meumark, Greg Almquist, Carole Blanca, Flora Olguin, Alice Blake, Pauline Munoz, Rusty O'Brien, Kelly Finn, Linda Rosen, Tammy Whitt, Jose Rodriguez, Amador Gomez, Harry Kagan, Steve Priest, Elizabeth Ellis, Tammy Sturm, Charles Arrans, Clint Lantzsch, Edward Williams, Larry Kerley, Joe Ferone, John O'Banon, Vivian Pain, Yolanda Contreras and Helen Arbuzzi, Carla Demps.

Office workers in the play were Francine Gardner played by Sandra Doherty and Katherine Wolzow played by Tammy Swindoll.

Pam Briscoe played the part of Sylvia Barrett's friend to whom she wrote letters. Congratulations Junior Class on the good turnout. Your play can be termed a success.

Sorry if there has been confusion about the Parent-Teacher Club meeting. The regularly scheduled time to meet is the third Tuesday of the month. It was mistakenly put on the school calendar as April 13.

In reality however, the Hutto PTC meeting will be April 27. We did not want to conflict with the special called H.I.S.D. meeting which fell on our regularly scheduled time.

This is just another example of community cooperation as the ladies of the Tuesday Club moved their meeting to Monday, April 22 so that it wouldn't conflict with PTC.

Now, The final PTC meeting is Tuesday April 27 at which time the new slate of officers will be installed. We urge anyone interested to bring something made from a recipe that was submitted to the cookbook. We are having a "tasting bee" for the social hour and the goodies will be from the Commemorative Cookbook. It should be a fun meeting and a good way to start the new officers into their term.

The public is urged to attend the special called Hutto Independent School District board meeting April 20. Deadline for submitting bids on the school bonds is 7:30 p.m.

The Hutto Student Council went to San Marcos to the district student council convention April 8.

They presented a scrapbook of the council's projects of the year. The Hutto S.C. won first place for their scrapbook over all schools which included some very large schools.

They will take their scrapbook to the State Convention April 29, 30 and May 1.

Officers for the local student council were elected for the following year on Friday of last week. Serving as president will be Greg Almquist; Jack Saul, vice president; Tammy Sturm, secretary; and Glen Almquist, treasurer.

Mrs. Ellen Morris has announced the cast of the Senior Class Play, "Harvey." The production will be Saturday, May 8 at 8 p.m.

Myrtle Mae Simmons will be played by Susan Thweatt; Veta Simmons by Janette Huf; Elwood P. Dowd by Stanley Lantzsch; Mrs. Chavenet by Vicki Ahrens; Ruth Kelly by Janeane Barnes; Duane Wilson by Manuel Rios; Lyman Sanderson by Danny Stern; William Chumley by Duane Finn; Betty Chumley by Cindy Gantt; Judge Gaffney by David Bittner; E. J. Lofgren by Wayne Taylor and the butler, Mr. Johnson by Jerry Schneider.

W-BCO meet marks eleventh year

Williamson-Burnet County Opportunities, Inc. started its eleventh year this month. W-BCO Director Raleigh Elliott told directors meeting to review reports from the affirmative action committee, auditor and director Monday night.

The Community Action Program offices will be closed Good Friday, following action taken to add the day to agency holidays.

The audit report, presented by Arthur Ritchey, showed total assets of $32,816 as of November 30, 1975.

Assets included $24,816 cash on deposit plus $8,000 in "Seed Funds," money loaned to non-profit companies as front money to establish new projects.

Liabilities listed included $913 in accounts payable to the Community Services Administration (C.S.A.), $12,072 to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) and $274 owed to family planning. Fund balances showed $1,006 for C.S.A. Neighborhood Centers, $2,825 in the HEW Handicap Program fund and $223 left in the Office of Economic Opportunity rural housing alliance.

Ritchey reported that the audit had been accepted by C.S.A., but was still undergoing review at HEW offices.

IN AN AFFIRMATIVE ACTION committee report presented by Robert Shirley, committee chairman, the agency's present status relative to non-discrimination in employment and program participation was reviewed.

It was determined that agency personnel policies reflect a commitment to equal employment opportunity.

"An ethnic breakdown of Program Participants which exactly matched the poverty population would be: Black, 20 percent, Mexican-American, 23 percent, White 57 percent," the report stated. "During the first four months of the current program year, with 1,840 people in on-going programs, our percentages were: Black, 36 percent, Mexican-American, 40 percent, White, 24 percent.

The Committee discussed the relatively low percentage of low-income white participants which has long been a problem in Williamson County, particularly. It was recommended that special outreach efforts be planned to attempt to involve more low-income white participants in all programs.

The report also states, "With the major exception of the banks used by the Agency, most of our suppliers are stated Equal Opportunity Employers. The Committee discussed the possibility of recommending changing agency accounts to equal opportunity banks in Austin, but decided the inconvenience and the possible adverse community reaction outweighed the possible gains."

DISCUSSION of the report focused around moving the W-BCO monies to an Austin bank, with the minority Union National Bank on North Interregional being specifically mentioned.

W-BCO currently has money in four Williamson County banks.

Because of the various inconveniences connected with banking outside the county, no action was taken on the matter.

The committee also recommended organizing Human Rights Committees in each major community within the counties to serve as fact-finding and community education groups to combat areas of discrimination or lack of equal employment opportunity in the public institutions of Williamson and Burnet Counties.

The committees additionally would function as resources to persons who felt their equal employment rights had been violated.

A FINAL FLOURISH and a bit of fluffing from Bonnie Wolbrueck of Walburg and Gayle Barrington of Round Rock, president of the Georgetown Young Homemakers, and each of the 15 dolls made and dressed in American period costumes by the group is ready to display in the window of the Main Street Bookshoppe. The Young Homemakers made the dolls, which will be exhibited in the downtown store for two weeks and then moved to a display case at Georgetown High, as their bicentennial project.

OUT THE WINDOW — Marilyn Thomas, head of the Georgetown Young Homemakers' Bicentennial Committee, arranges each of the dolls in a "Parade of Ladies' Fashions" in the Main Street Bookshoppe window. Mrs. Thomas took charge of research and organization of the project, which took months while such materials as yarn, bottles and styrofoam balls were collected to be transformed into hair, doll forms and pretty faces. Work on the dolls and costumes themselves took approximately two months.

STARTING THEIR ELEVENTH year of work are Williamson-Burnet County Opportunities, Inc. and its director, Raleigh Elliott of Georgetown. "If there is anything good, bad or indifferent about the agency, there is no one to blame but me," said the man who has been with this county's Community Action Program administration since its inception here. "It's pretty unusual for someone to stay with a public service organization like this for that length of time." CETA Coordinator Kathy Swift praised her administrative director.

employability development plan, counseling sessions which help persons realize their goals and plan steps to achieve the goals: classroom training, formal instruction on such varied occupations as tailoring, barbering, welding and nursing; on-the-job training or work experience, employment contracted with either public or private businesses which agree to train the Title I client in a certain job.

A minimum wage stipend of $2.30 per hour, plus possible allowances for dependency and supportive services, are allotted to persons involved in Title I in-class training.

Salaries are supplemented for persons engaged in on-the-job training through training repayments to the employer.

TITLE III is a summer youth program aimed mainly at disadvantaged youth between 14 and 21 years old. Fulltime summer employment at minimum wage is located for the eight-to-ten-week summer period. The program employed 104 youths in Williamson County last summer, 51 in Burnet County.

The emergency jobs program, Title VI, applies to persons with job skills who are unemployed because of current job conditions.

To be eligible, a person must have been unemployed for 30 days or have exhausted unemployment insurance. Employment is in the public sector, such as with schools or county offices.

Between July 1, 1975, and March 31, 1976, there were 21 Title VI participants in Williamson County, including an assistant librarian, the assistant county attorney and a jailer.

FROM "BIRTH OF NATION" and "Spirit of '76" to "Space explorations, Watergate scandal and America's Bicentennial Celebration," the dolls, each representing the height of fashions during a ten-year span, are arranged in chronological order by Bonnie Wolbrueck, a member of the Georgetown Young Homemakers. The group researched 200 years of fashion through the Smithsonian Institute and bought a film and book from Butterick Publishing Company to authentically reproduce each representative garment. The book and film will be donated to the Georgetown High School Homemaking Department.

FROM THE EAGLES NEST

This past weekend at the UIL District Literary meet Georgetown fared rather well. However, they were beat out of Sweepstakes by one point by Del Valle. Going on to regional competition in Corpus Christi April 23-24 are: Jeff Osborn, second in poetry; Bart Jennings, second in informative speaking; Janice Richmond, second in editorial writing and headline writing; Kathy Schneider, first in shorthand; Cheryl Moore, first in typing; David Riethmeyer, second in typing; Norbert Klepac, first in slide rule; Mark Braun, second in slide rule; Mike Lidell, first in ready writing; Thomas Groman, first in science. These people, along with the One-Act Play cast and crew, will be in Corpus Christi next week. Best of luck to everyone.

A lot has been going on with the FFA. Suzy Jackson was elected chapter sweetheart last week in Taylor. And this past week at Texas A&M University Vic Crawford, Sonnie Person, and Jay Hawes, the livestock judging team, placed first in district and sixth in area. The dairy cattle judging team, Steven Schwausch, Harry Taylor, and Tracy Sandifer placed second in district and fourteenth in area.

Monday night NHS held its monthly meeting. Tom Collier was selected as Student of the Month. Next year's NHS officers are Hilda Guevara, president; Treva Turner, vice-president; Debby Baldwin, secretary; and Cindy Mickan, treasurer. Also committees were announced for the April 24 Hike and Bike project. FHA will also help on this venture. Pick up petitions from most any NHS member.

"JB" will be performed Thursday for the school. Tickets were sold at lunch with only 200 available because of limited seating space in the little theatre.

Jan Wakefield, our girl's golf team, placed third in district golf.

In girls' track Coach Martha Vance was pleased with the performance given Friday but despite their efforts only Lori Glass and Nila Shanklin got into finals.

Thursday the Eagles travel to Round Rock to play the Dragons. So far the Eagles have beat Round Rock once and lost once.

Observing Easter

"Jesus said, I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." John 11:25.

Easter, the day on which we celebrate the resurrection of our Lord, should find us worshipping Him in His Church. He is alive! His presence fills the sanctuary! All things are made new. It is the time of beginning again. Attend church and join your neighbors in singing praises to God for His Glory and Power and Love; and some of this Resurrection Joy and Power will come to you.

Faculty members enrich education with study

Five faculty members of Southwestern University will have an opportunity to take some time off for study and enrichment this next year.

Three teachers — Dr. Joe Colwell, Dr. Jack Harris and R. Cochrane Penick — have been granted sabbatical leaves.

Two others — Gerhild Rogers and Claude Kennard — will receive grants for summer study and travel.

The teachers will use the leaves and grants for additional reading and research in their specialized fields; for travel to let them visit the sites and absorb the cultures about which they teach; and in some cases for uninterrupted time in which to write or work in the arts.

"This gives our faculty members, at an interval of years, an opportunity to pause from the routine of the classroom," said Dr. F. B. Clifford, Dean of the Brown College of Arts and Sciences at Southwestern.

"They have an opportunity to step out to seek new knowledge and to broaden their experience. We find that it helps them come back refreshed and better prepared," the Dean said.

The Southwestern faculty members will use their leaves and grants in these ways:

• Dr. Joe Colwell, chairman of the Department of Economics and Business Administration and the Lillie and Roy Cullen Professor of Economics, will work at the University of Texas, Austin, during the 1976 fall semester to complete a study in real estate. In the spring semester, 1977, he plans to participate in the Real Estate Research Institute at Texas A&M in a study of the impact of government regulation on real estate.

"This analysis will concentrate on the non-governmental costs of governmental regulation, that is, the costs imposed on society which call for additional resource use and create higher prices," Dr. Colwell says.

"Possibly the study will go one step farther and attempt to determine the benefits of such government regulation and relate these to the costs."

• Dr. Jack Harris, assistant professor of English, will focus on 18th century England with a reading program and an extended trip in the spring to England, Italy and France.

In addition to visiting famous sites and museums, Dr. Harris said, "I would like to increase my understanding of 18th century literature by reading works that I have not had an opportunity to read and by examining the role of landscape in that literature."

While doing this he will take photographs to build his slide presentations that he uses in classes.

• R. Cochrane Penick, professor of organ and sacred music, will use his sabbatical during the fall semester to prepare previously unpublished sonatas for two keyboard instruments composed by Bernardo Pasquini in 1704.

Pasquini was the greatest organist in Italy during the second half of the 17th century, Penick says, and he has photocopies of the only manuscripts of Pasquini known to be in Europe.

He plans to prepare the 15 four-minute sonatas for a concert to be presented at Southwestern.

• Claude Kennard, associate professor of art, will use a grant in lieu of a sabbatical this summer for a six week trip to Belgium, France, Italy, Austria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Poland where he will visit sites, institutions and monuments.

He will acquire slides to use in the teaching of his courses at Southwestern.

• Gerhild Rogers, instructor in foreign languages, plans to use her study grant in France for the study of French. The first three-week session will begin June 14 and will focus on French literature, while the second three-week session will be a study of contemporary French Society.

She and her husband, Dr. Paul Rogers, will visit in Germany for about two weeks before going to France for the six weeks study.

Southwestern gears up for summer enrollment

After a record setting enrollment last summer, Southwestern University is gearing up for another full summer of courses ranging from digging in Indian mounds to programming computers.

The Southwestern summer school will have three sessions with the first covering May 11-June 1, the second June 2-July 9, and the third July 12-30.

There are also two workshops scheduled — the Piano Clinic from June 7-12 and the Choral Music Institute from July 11-17.

Pre-registration for the summer sessions will be April 26 at 3 p.m. in Bishops Memorial Union at Southwestern.

While the May session will cover a wide variety of subjects including the sciences, business, history, English, sociology, art, music, and religion, there are two courses expected to be among the most popular.

One is the "Archeology of Palestine" taught by Dr. Ed Steelman, which features classroom study of the archeology of Palestine, and then features practical work on archeology on an Indian mound near the San Gabriel River.

The other will be "Intensive French" taught by Dr. Regine Reynolds. This course will have students living in the International House at Southwestern and carrying out all of their living experiences, including class work, in the French language.

"We did this for the first time last year and it worked wonderfully well," said Dr. Reynolds.

"Everyone really learned to use French."

The Sunday SUN

by Dr. Wendell Osborn, and "Design in Nature," an art course taught by Guss Farmer.

A complete list of the 40 courses to be offered in the May session, the 42 to be offered in the June session and the nine in the July session may be obtained from the Office of Admissions, Southwestern University.

In addition to the regular academic sessions, there will also be such activities this summer as the first annual Alumni College, a four-day session that will allow alumni to update their education while also taking part in artistic and recreational programs.

For the high school students there will be intensive cheerleading and twirling camps on the Southwestern campus.

And for all age groups there will be the full recreational program of swimming, golf and tennis instruction under the direction of athletic director Dr. T. L. Kassen.

Episcopalians getting ready for 'Show and Tell' May 1-2

Volunteers from the University, shown applying paint on the east side, are Sarah Allen, Barbara Cilley, and Susan Armstrong, all members of the Zeta sorority.

The quaint, lovely little Grace Episcopal Church has been looking dreary in recent months, but in the last couple of weeks its membership, aided by Southwestern University students and other friends, have been doing a cosmetic job on it that will have it sparkling and receptive when the Bicentennial showing comes off May 1-2.

On the west side three more cuties apply makeup to the old church. They are Ann Skinner, Elaine Carlton and Laura Lancaster.

High-scorer of the day, Ron Bear-don, a Round Rock member of the church, waves friendly brush.

Their feet solidly on ground, J. Raper, vicar, and Jerry Montgomery valiantly do their part by holding Lawyer's ladder. They never let go and it worked out well.

Jerry Lawyer, a little green beneath the gills, waves from his perilous perch just before beginning his work.

Margaret Raper, the pastor's help-mate, does her share of the resurfacing.

7. Margaret Norman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norman, was a busy little lady, fetching and carrying and mixing and doing other chores.

Leander's school board will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the administration building on the Leander campus for a workshop session on finance and building utilization.

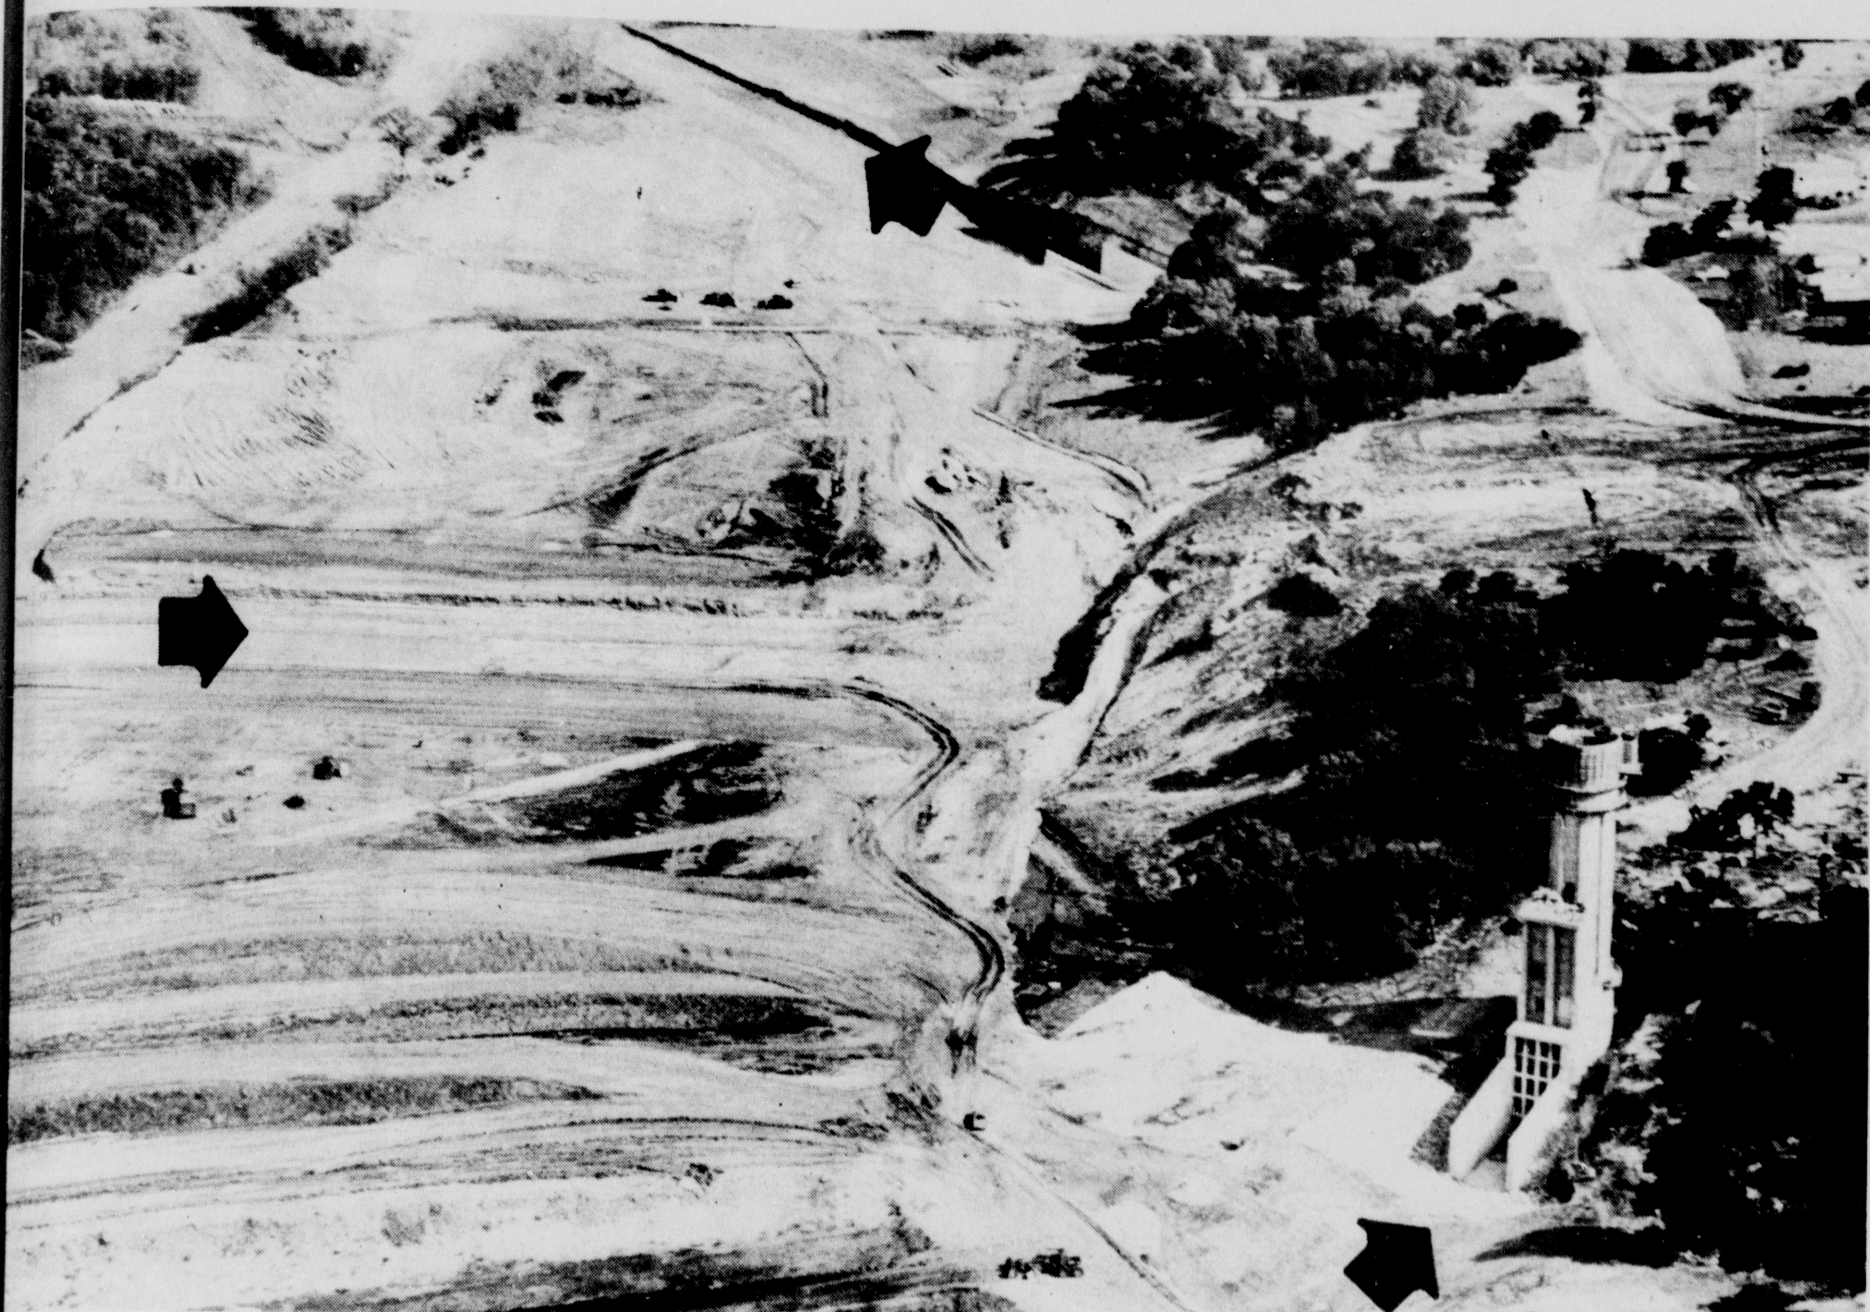

Board president Lew Wilson said Leander business manager John Thurman will begin a series of presentations to orient the school board to the district's financial structure and situation, as well as financial procedures.

Thurman will explain in particular how district financial records are kept and the meaning of account designations.

The board will also study the manner in which present school-owned buildings are utilized and possible alternative uses for next year.

DAM PROGRESS — The intake structure, tunnel, stilling station and discharge channel for the dam on the north San Gabriel are all complete. According to the Army Corps of Engineers, the North San Gabriel has already been dammed. Water will rise and soon be sidetracked to the intake structure (arrow, bottom right) and will be re-channelled through the tunnel and out the discharge channel (arrow, top right). The arrow in the left portion of the picture shows the base of the dam site, or the bedrock. Now that bedrock has been reached, the center core of the dam, topsoil and impervious rocks will be hauled in so that actual construction of the 6,700 foot long 162 foot high structure can begin. Because of underground springs, the San Gabriel continues to flow here in Georgetown even though the north fork has actually been dammed and has not risen enough to be re-channelled.

Five Texans receive honorary degrees

Five outstanding Texans will receive honorary degrees from Southwestern University at Georgetown April 23.

The Convocation, to be held at 2 p. m. in Lois Perkins Chapel, will be preceded by a reception at 11 a. m. in Bishops Memorial Union and by a luncheon in the University Commons at 12:15 in honor of the recipients.

Those to be honored, and the degrees they will receive, include:

- The Rev. H. Eugene Cragg, senior minister of Memorial Drive United Methodist Church in Houston, doctor of divinity.
- Dr. Ruth Hartgraves, physician in obstetrics and gynecology, of Houston, doctor of sciences.
- Charles M. Heyne, industrialist and rancher, of Houston and Crockett, doctor of humane letters.
- The Rev. Dan Rodriguez, director of the United Methodist Rio Grande Conference Council on Ministries, of San Antonio, doctor of divinity.
- Everitt Walker, deputy chancellor, The University of Texas System, of Austin, doctor of laws.

and Oxford.

Those taking part in conferring the degrees will be University President Dr. Durwood Fleming, Board of Trustees Chairman Dr. Charles M. Prothro, and faculty members Dr. John Score, Dr. Eb Girvin, Dr. Judson Custer, Dr. E. H. Steelman and Dr. Joe Colwell.

Music will be furnished by The Southwestern Singers under the direction of Ken Shepard and by organist R. Cochrane Penick.

Others taking part in the ceremony will be University Chaplain Dr. Farley Snell and marshals Dr. Norman Spellman, Thomas Douglass, and Dr. Leonard Giesecke.

Since 1972 Mr. Cragg has served as senior minister of one of Methodism's fastest growing congregations. He has long been concerned with the work of the church in the area of missions and has led several congregations to substantial increases in missionary support.

Cragg also has a special interest in education, and serves as a member of the Board of Trustees of Lon Morris College, on the Development Council of Wiley College, and on the President's Council of Southwestern University.

He also is a trustee of the Texas Methodist Foundation.

Prior to his appointment to Memorial Drive United Methodist Church, Cragg served churches in Gilmer, Henderson, and Lake Jackson.

Dr. Hartgraves has been a practicing physician in obstetrics and gynecology in Houston since 1935. In addition to her private practice in Houston, Dr. Hartgraves served from 1943 to 1970 as assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Baylor College of Medicine, also serving as sponsor of women students at that institution.

She is a graduate of the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston with postgraduate work in Boston and New York City.

Hartgraves has received numerous honors, including the Elizabeth Blackwell Award of 1975, presented annually by the American Medical Women's Association to a person who has made the most outstanding contribution to the cause of women in the field of medicine.

Charles Heyne, a 1922 graduate of Southwestern University, is Chairman of the Board of Charles G. Heyne & Co., Inc., Mechanical Contractors, a company which he founded in 1937.

He owns and operates ranches in Real, Uvalde, and Houston Counties. He is also an original director of the Allied First National Bank in Crockett, of the South Coast Life Insurance Co., and of the McGregor Park Bank of Houston, and a former director of USLIFE Insurance Co. He also has oil interests in Texas and Louisiana.

Heyne served on Southwestern's Board of Trustees for 16 years, and was on the board's executive committee for several of those years. He has continued to actively support Southwestern and is a member of the President's Council of Southwestern.

The son of the Rev. and Mrs. Amado Rodriguez, who served the Rio Grande Conference of the United Methodist Church for nearly 30 years, the Rev. Dan and Mrs. Rodriguez have followed the path of dedication set by their parents in service to the Church.

A 1954 graduate of Southwestern, he earned his bachelor of divinity degree from Perkins School of Theology, SMU, in 1957. There followed service as pastor of churches in Raymondville, Corpus Christi, Austin and Mission.

In 1971 he was appointed district superintendent to the Northern District of the Rio Grande Conference headquartered in San Antonio, a post which he held until 1974 when he was named director of the Council on Ministries for the Rio Grande Conference.

Mr. Rodriguez has long been an enthusiastic supporter of Southwestern University in many areas of work. Currently he is serving as a member of Southwestern's Board of Trustees.

As deputy chancellor of the University of Texas System, Everitt Walker is in charge of the day-to-day operation of an educational program that has 12 campuses with 80,000 students and 35,000 faculty and staff members.

His career experience began with service as auditor at Sam Houston State University and at Texas Tech. He has been business manager and comptroller of hospitals for the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston and also served as associate director at that institution.

In 1965 Walker was appointed director of facilities planning and construction for The University of Texas System and has subsequently served as vice chancellor for business affairs, and deputy chancellor for administration before being appointed to his present position last year.

Walker is a graduate of Sam Houston State University and also holds the master of business administration degree from the University of Texas, Austin. He is a certified public accountant.

Radiation detection school set for G'town

Use of radiation detection equipment by emergency personnel will be the subject of a two-day Radiological Monitor School beginning April 20, 1976, in Georgetown under sponsorship of the Division of Emergency Medical Services of the Department of Health Resources and the Georgetown Civil Defense Office.

The April 20 and 22 school will be held in the Training Room at Fire Hall, 802 Main Street in Georgetown from 6:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. both nights. Further information may be obtained by contacting Leo Wood, Director of Georgetown Civil Defense or Rodney Montgomery, Fire Chief.

The instructors from the Emergency Medical Services Division of the Department of Health Resources in Austin will be Garland Latham and Calvin Blackman.

Use of radioisotopes has increased greatly in Texas, and the risks of an accident involving transportation or use of these substances also has increased, intensifying the need for emergency personnel trained in using monitoring devices.

James Jones of Georgetown placed third in Class I of the first annual French and Spanish Declamation Contest at the University of Texas recently. All students recited either Verlaine's "Clair de lune" or Lorca's "El nino loco," depending on their language, followed by a personal selection.

Walk the wilderness

"Without going to a lot of expense a person needs to have comfortable shoes. Good hiking shoes are expensive, so I would say canvas shoes are okay. But avoid sandals, anything that is going to slip up and down or go between the toes. You need shoes that lace up."

RONNIE DUG OUT the old and battered pair of boots which had walked many miles of pasture but, most recently, had merely rested atop the hat he selected for our first hike. Nearly ditto on Charles' well-worn boots.

My shoes had walked the University of Texas lengthwise and across from its farthest edge all the way to downtown Austin — more than once. They were worn and comfortable.

For Kristin, whose mother worried, we were not so sure. So we took along an extra pair and switched halfway through the hike to find out which shoes to bring along next time.

WE DECIDED we were hiking in the right place, we decided we were glad we had brought along cookies and cold water, we decided to have a wiener-roast lunch on the way home through San Gabriel Park, we decided we loved the San Gabriel and hiking and were definitely going to be back — but we never decided which pair of Kristin's shoes was better than the other.

A light knapsack helped the experiment along, however.

"There are some very inexpensive knapsacks just to carry lunch or odds and ends," we had been helped by Venable's matchless advice before we began. "They are available at discount stores and sporting goods stores for under $5."

A knapsack of this sort could not be used for more strenuous backpacking, but helped us take along a few items which made the hike more comfortable and enjoyable — like Kristin's shoes and an extra pair of socks.

"Persons who go into this sort of thing say wool socks, but good, absorbent cotton socks would probably be fine. And if you are going to be carrying any kind of load, you should wear two pairs of socks."

They come in handy if you slip too near one of the enticing little waterfalls along the North Fork region.

"THIS IS a matter of taste," Venable forewarned, "but some people like to have some kind of walking staff. If you are going to be walking five to six miles in a day it might be useful to have it. I like one particularly when I am carrying a load."

"Just pick up a piece of driftwood. I find a stick that fits my hand and is long enough. Then if I get tired of it I just throw it away. The butt end of a cane fishing pole, which is light but still sturdy, would be fine, too."

So Kristin came up with a gnarled old tree limb only half again as tall as she is — more of a dragging stick than a walking staff.

But she liked it, so Ronnie took it walking for her.

It lost its attraction only as we neared the river crossing and our parked car again.

But the large, rounded stone that Kristin picked up, Kristin kept.

It was the result of a long but desultory search through riverside rocks washed smooth by periodic rises in the Gabriel, made while we waited word of an exploratory expedition Charles and Ron took up the nearby bluff.

A HODGE-PODGE of "hiking gear" marks this determined trio as well-informed beginners, ready to avoid blisters with comfortable lace-up shoes and thick cotton socks, hunger and thirst with a well-packed knapsack, and heat stroke with wide-brimmed hats. In order, the hikers are Charles Bieleas, a Bartlett farmer, Ronnie Persky of Bartlett, employed by the Department of Public Welfare in Austin, and Kristin Kneten, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Garland Kneten of Bartlett. By the way — Kristin was the hiker most prone to sunburn and she does have a hat. She just carried it all the way.

ALL THEY SAW was trees. Kristin and I had seen quick spiders, murky moss, soaring hawks, crumbling stones, blue flowers, funny tree branches, a pink shirt and green cap hopping through the slope, minnows, funny bubbles in the water, lizards — a whole hidden world.

It is a world that is waiting for you very near your home, here in Williamson County.

Only a few notes of caution are needed concerning Williamson County hikers and the lakes area.

WATCH FOR SNAKES but don't let something that will in all likelihood not materialize keep you from a wonderful experience.

"I am not aware of any major problems with spiders, though that area out there definitely had some rattlesnakes. But I have never seen one out there. It occasionally can be a problem even walking on a road. It's not a danger that should keep people from hiking, but you should be aware of and on the lookout for snakes," Venable said.

He also advised that, while hikers should probably take along a first aid kit, they should not waste time trying to treat a snakebite.

"Rush that person to the emergency room of a hospital. He should not be made to walk — use a litter or carry him. Driving in someone should stay with the person, who should relax. Snakebite victims can live for 24 hours if they don't exert themselves."

"It's no reason to avoid hiking, just to be careful."

TICKS AND CHIGGERS do abound in the brushy area of the North Fork.

"I wear good shoes and dust my ankles with sulphur because the ticks are bad," said Linda Graves, another lover of the North Fork wilderness.

Venable also cautions hikers

EASTER EGG TREE — Mrs. Tom Harrison made a large Easter Egg Tree for her daughter Mary's fourth grade classroom taught by Mrs. Debby Welch. The tree, on display all week in the classroom served as a constant reminder that Easter holidays were just around the corner.

to remember that any hilly area is subject to flash flooding. When the ground is saturated and still more rains come, watch out.

"Anything where you have to cross a stream and come back should be avoided if rains or flash floods are predicted. Avoid parking your car in areas near the Gabriel River or creeks likely to flood during a rainy time of year."

Another thing to remember is that not all the west Williamson area is open public property. Willful criminal trespass carries a fine of up to $200.

Further advice on avoiding trespassing is listed in the article in this issue which details precise locations of choice hiking areas in the county. WHEN is the best time to hike?

The more you explore Williamson County and the Booties area, the more you realize the wilderness land has something different to offer every day, every season.

Try it only once and you will see.

In-county hikes best at North Fork

"It's a perfectly beautiful area," said Linda Graves of Georgetown, who is filming parts of the North Fork Lake region which will be flooded when dam construction is completed. "I think this is something unique."

And now that much of the western Williamson County wilderness has been purchased by the government as a public lake and park area, the land is open for day hikes and, in special cases where permission is first obtained from park authorities, for group camping.

"Anyone wanting to go in there should pick up a map at the Corps of Engineers Headquarters," Dr. Connie Venable reminds new hikers unfamiliar with the area. Venable calls the site "some of the most beautiful area around."

"I would recommend it to anyone interested in a day out," he said.

"THIS HAD NEVER been possible before," said Elizabeth Venable, who recently took several senior Girl Scouts on an overnight campout in the Booties Crossings area. She explained that such a hike had been anticipated for years, but it was not until the government bought and opened the land that it became feasible. "It would have been very time-consuming to find the landowners involved."

Even now part of the land is leased and therefore not open to the public.

"You know the nature of ranchers here," Park Ranger Ken Howell reminds persons interested in exploring the area. "They like their privacy."

Because not all the accessible land is open, and because construction makes some areas dangerous, first item on any list of things to do in order to go hiking in Williamson County's open North Fork region must be getting a hunting map from the U. S. Army Engineer Corps Headquarters on the way out to hike.

Another available map, of both the North Fork and Granger lakes, will show a larger overview of roads, but the hunting map details specific roadways through the lake area, closed construction sites and boundaries of the public land.

An added plus is that a scenic overlook is only fractions of a mile down the road from the Engineer Headquarters. The office is located just off Farm-to-Market Road 2338, a little over three miles west of Georgetown.

AS FOR THE HIKING country itself, a good starting place is along Booties Road — County Road 261. Getting there is quite easy: From the Engineer Headquarters drive back to FM 2338 and turn west, away from Georgetown. Turn south where the road tees to the North Lake subdivision. Just over a mile south of the FM 2338 turnoff the road is met by County Road 262, which connects with 261, Booties Road.

The first river crossing is just north of the 262-261 intersection.

With a copy of the hunting map before you it is quite easy to find, and a really good landmark because the river crossing marks the path to a spectacular garden-waterfall.

An easy walk, the falls is located just below a bluff where the old Crockett home is located. Because of this, and because families living in the home above obviously created a garden which still flourishes around the fall, the area is known locally as Crockett Garden.

"It's just a garden, a beautiful site," said Venable. "It's well worth the trip for anyone who will really appreciate it."

"It's an experience — something very special," said Mrs. Graves, who also urges that all hikers to the area show particular consideration to preserve the hauntingly lovely spot.

"The only road system is the buildup of lime. If 50 people walk on that, it will only take a year to ruin it," she said.

Lake waters will go up to the edge of the area but, barring a flood, will not destroy the beauty there.

Only people could do that.

Another reason to be careful there is that the government-owned property ends very near the waterfall.

"We do not own the property the house is on," Howell cautions. "Generally just going up to the spring is about as far as you should go because we don't have the boundary fenced." There will be stakes marking the boundary, however.

Anyone who goes beyond the markers is illegally trespassing and open to prosecution which could involve a $200 fine for criminal trespass.

ANOTHER LAKE construction site surrounded by open public area is in the eastern part of the county, past Granger.

While much of the land was used for farming or pasture, wilderness again abounds along several creek banks within the government property.

Leo Balster, stationed at the Granger Lake engineering headquarters visible from FM 971 which runs through the old site of Friendship, said the entire lake region is open to the public, although some locations are designated as hard-hat areas.

The portion encompassed by dark blue on the North Fork Lake-Granger Lake map is government-owned and open to the public. Lighter blue areas surrounding both lake sites are leased for flood purposes only and may not be walked without owner's permission.

Much of the river belts, in direct contrast to the flat open land around them, are thickly overgrown, perhaps more attractive to one-spot fishermen than to adventurous cross-country hikers.

"Willis Creek has big pecan trees, and especially on the south side there is a road where you have access," Balster said.

The other major river crossing, along the San Gabriel itself, is highlighted by a large old bridge, alone worth the trip.

Sparkling waters below entice summer waders while brushy banks attract more adventurous trail blazers.

The Hoxie Bridge links an unnumbered gravel road across the deep gorge of the San Gabriel with high metal supports and decidedly rickety wooden planks — a memorable crossover. The road is the first turnoff to the north along FM 1331, which runs eastward just south of Circleville from State Highway 95.

Whether you choose North Fork or Granger, you choose an area that will be eventually flooded.

"Remember, we're on the bottom of the lake," Elizabeth Venable reminded her Girl Scouts as they walked along the San Gabriel recently.

It's worth a hike just for that.

TEAMMATES — Carrin Patman of Ganado, Jamie H. Clements of Temple, and State Rep. John Wilson of LaGrange hold a large sample ballot to show how they hope people will vote in Texas' first presidential primary May 1. The three are teammates running on the May 1 Democratic Primary ballot to be "delegates" for Lloyd M. Bentsen at the Democratic National Convention of 1976.

Delegates for Bentsen visit here Wednesday

(Spl.) — A public reception at 2 p.m. on Wednesday at the Georgetown Inn will give voters in the Georgetown area an opportunity to get information on how the presidential primary works and to meet some of the delegate candidates who are asking to represent the 18th senatorial district at the Democratic National Convention in New York.

Jointly honored at the reception will be the three candidates running as teammates on the May 1 Democratic Primary ballot to be "delegates" for Lloyd M. Bentsen at the Democratic National convention of 1976, including Carrin Patman, wife of State Senator Bill Patman of Ganado, Jamie H. Clements of Temple, and State Representative John Wilson of LaGrange.

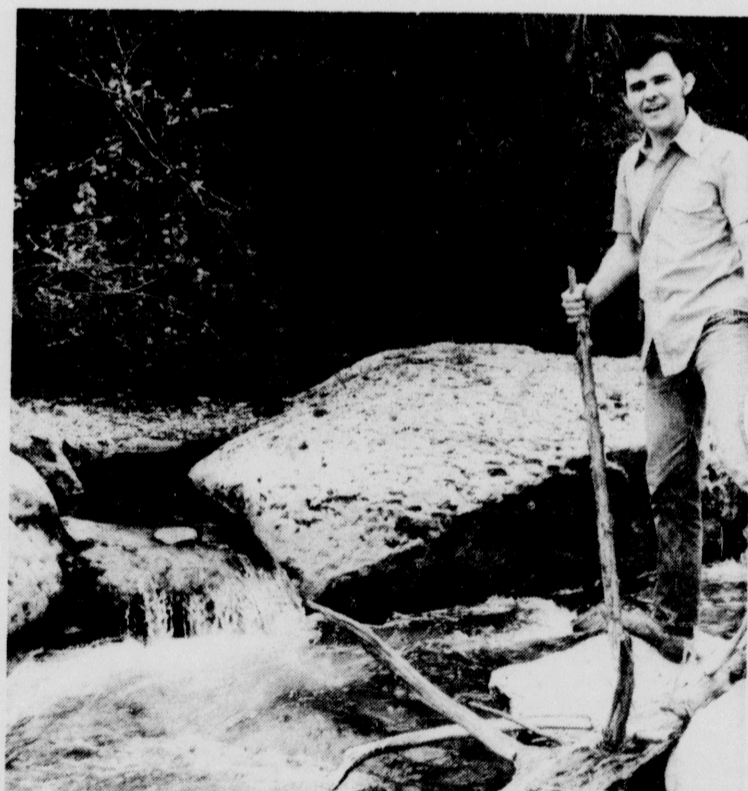

Accompanying the trio will be Senator Bill Patman who, with the three candidates, will be available for a press conference at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Georgetown Inn. Assisting with the hosting of the public reception are Miss Mary Elizabeth Fox and Mrs.

Thatcher Atkin, both of Georgetown.

Regardless of party affiliation, it is necessary to know how the presidential primary works. The Wednesday gathering gives the opportunity to find out from these distinguished visitors to Georgetown. People in the area are encouraged to attend the reception.

SU trips Hilltoppers 9-8 with big ninth inning

Southwestern University's Pirate diamondmen sent four runs across the plate in the top of the ninth inning at Lucian-Hamilton Field on Thursday to nip St. Edward's 9-8 in a Big State Conference tilt.

SU's Ron Prewitt picked up the win, with help from reliever Noel Seal, who got his first save of the year as he came on to get the last two outs. Rick Butcher took the loss in relief of Edsmen started James Ellison.

Southwestern trailed the hosts 8-5 going into the final inning, but managed to rally, then hold off the Hilltoppers.

The win was SU's sixth conference victory of the year against two losses. Overall, the Pirates stand 28-10 for the year, with an 8-4 triumph over league leader St. Mary's last Tuesday. St. Mary's held a 5-1 conference mark going into Thursday's game.

Southwestern had a chance to win its 30th game for the third straight year Saturday when it played Abilene Christian in a double-header in Georgetown's San Gabriel Park starting at 1:30 p.m. The Bucs played ACC in a single game Friday in Georgetown, but results were not in at presstime.

Attention is focused on games next week, however, as the Pirates try to stay afloat in the BSC race.

Wednesday, April 21, the Bucs go to Huston-Tillotson, always a hard place for a visiting team to win.

Even though H-T is in last place in the conference, the Rams have shown considerable strength at times and came within one hit of beating league-leading St. Mary's in San Antonio. The Rams led in that game 2-0 until St. Mary's scored three runs in the bottom half of the ninth inning of a home run.

Then on Saturday, April 24, the Bucs have a return game with St. Edward's in Georgetown at 2 p.m.

Southwestern ends its regular season on April 28 when it hosts

Huston-Tillotson at San Gabriel Park. If the conference race would be changed by another game, the Bucs and East Texas Baptist will play a make-up game at a later date in Georgetown for an earlier contest that was rained out in Marshall.

Sandy Creek has sunrise service

The Sandy Creek Baptist Church in Leander is having an Easter Sunrise at 6 a.m. April 18.

The service will be held at Round Mountain Road and Fulkers Lane in the Sandy Creek Ranches Subdivision. Everyone is invited to share in observing the anniversary of Our Lord's Resurrection.

The youth of the church will serve a sausage and pancake breakfast following the service.

★ Doerfler plans steady course

elected. I'm not an older, settled part of the establishment. But you have to move over eventually, make room for the younger people, and I think people realize that. Sooner or later I'll have to move over too."

Doerfler is a young mayor, 33, but he seems relaxed and confident in his new capacity. His opponent pulled 39 percent of the vote to Doerfler's 57 percent in the city elections, but he feels no hard feelings left over from the contest. "The people here are democratic, and I feel like most of the people in Georgetown are with the majority. I don't think many people here carry grudges, and I think they realize we're all in this together."

Involved with Council work and his own plumbing business, Doerfler is still active in other local pursuits. He is a member and past president of the Georgetown Kiwanis Club, a member and past director of the Chamber of Commerce. He teaches a Sunday school class at Christ Lutheran Church. He and his wife, Paula, have two children, Sharon, 9 and Don 8.

Tall and athletic-looking, Doerfler is easily recognizable in his usual dress of green work clothes. He grins a lot, seems carefree. But his manner changes from friendly fun to gravity depending on the subject or situation.

He waves and stops to talk to people on trips between his business and City Hall. Friends wander in and out of his office door on Seventh Street, especially after business hours. The people he talks with there behave toward him as a friend rather than an official.

DOERFLER'S PHILOSOPHY of the City Council's job is simple: "The Council makes policy, the city administration carries it out."

The new Mayor doesn't hold a college degree, but the complications of government don't seem to bother him. He says he has inherited a tight, well-run ship, with natural strengths which will make the job easier.

"Our number one strength is our city manager," he comments. "Leo Wood has a good staff, with strong department heads and good organization."

"Number two, Georgetown is blessed with people who participate. For instance, our Planning and Zoning Commission. They serve without pay, and they take care of a lot of stuff before it ever gets to the Council. Our other boards do the same."

The town itself, he adds, is blessed with a good location and diversity of interests which contribute to its strength.

"Here we are, with a beautiful river," says Doerfler, "railroads coming in, an interstate highway and a state highway. We've got agriculture, business, homes, industry. The people here are just great, easy to talk to and easy to live with. Of course, we've got our problems some times — everyone does. But for the most part the people are great."

WHICH LEADS to what Doerfler sees as Georgetown's major challenge of the future — growth.

"Growth is good, and you don't want to deny growth. But you've got to be able to keep your utilities and services up with your growth."

He sees the source of that growth as

MAYOR JOHN DOERFLER

Georgetown's future reservoir. Austin will contribute too, says Doerfler, and he agrees with population estimates which project a continuous population ribbon between Austin and Temple-Belton within the next quarter century.

But most attention will have to be focused on the reservoir area according to the Mayor. "I don't think we need to worry about Austin in the near future. Growth and zoning around the lake are going to be our biggest challenge. Of course, we can't take in the lake, so we'll have to work with the county to control that area."

While cities large and small cry that the federal system has tilted too far toward Washington, and joust with federal money and paperwork problems, Doerfler feels Georgetown has comfortable intergovernmental relations.

"Right now our relations with the federal government are good, mainly because Tom Sams handles them, and he knows how to read their rules and paperwork requirements. So far our policy has been to try not to have any federal money in our working budget, so that if it was pulled out, we wouldn't fold up. We want to keep it that way."

"Our relations with CAPCO (the Capital Area Planning Council, a unit of "regional" government based in Austin) are good, especially since Harry Gold is president of the Executive Committee."

Our relations with the county government need improvement — in areas like the sanitary landfill situation. I hope we can accomplish better relations."

AS FOR LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Doerfler says its size and services will depend on the demands of the citizens. "Any services the citizens want, we want to provide. We don't want to deny them, as long as everyone realizes that it has to be paid for somehow. Any time you tip the scales with a new service, they have to be balanced with the required money. The money has to be accounted for."

Doerfler has thoughts on other challenges too — minority demands, the future termination of the Urban Renewal project, the trend toward loss of local youth and local trade to Austin.

"You're going to feel the minority push, that's natural. It's a steadily increasing thing. We have women and minorities on our city boards now, and they have worked well."

"We don't know yet what the effects of Urban Renewal's closing will be. We don't know what our obligations will be. Right now we're just on 'hold.' If the city elects to continue the project, we may be able to do so."

"We're pretty competitive all around with Austin in trade. I always found that about anything I wanted I could get here. Of course, Austin has the entertainment. But I don't understand when people don't realize that they can get more help and understanding from their local merchants, who know them and care about whether they are satisfied."

"It's true, we did have a problem with young people leaving town, just going off and never coming back. But we're making progress. A lot more young people now work in outlying areas, but choose to live in Georgetown. They realize that Georgetown has a lot to offer, especially in the way of family life."

THE MAYOR HAS SOME CONCRETE GOALS.

"I'm looking forward to completion of the water intake structure, with lines to Georgetown. We also are planning for a second water treatment plant, and we want to accomplish that. I hope to see more cooperation with the county government. Of course, we're about to make additions to the Stonehaven Center, we're going to build a new Neighborhood Center, and we have drainage projects going. We may also want to look into acquiring more park land."

Whether Georgetown can maintain its small town atmosphere "remains to be seen" says Doerfler.

"People come here, and they're going to keep coming here, because they like what Georgetown is, what it has to offer," he commented.

But won't that growth spoil the lure? "Basically I think it will stay the same — we hope to control the growth," says Doerfler.

Does the new Mayor have ambitions beyond City Hall?

"Yeah, next it's the Courthouse, then the Capital, then the White House, huh?" he laughs sarcastically. "No, no, no, I don't think so."

So there we are. John C. Doerfler has the ball. He's got two years to run with it.

Austin Savings and Loan is shooting for a Monday, April 26 opening in Georgetown. A company official said rain delayed the planned Thursday, April 15 opening of the Georgetown branch office. Weather permitting, he added, the company hopes to begin operations here a week from Monday.

Five pass ECA course

Williamson County gained five new Emergency Care Attendants Wednesday night when skills and written tests were passed by Georgetown Medical and Surgical Hospital LVN Becky Bonnet and employee George Stephenson, County EMS employees Dean Glover and John Monnich, and by Vivian Leonard. Glover is stationed at the Taylor EMS station, Monnich at the Cedar Park unit.

BREAKING UP — It's hard to say whether Councilman Harry Gold (right) and Mayor John Doerfler are breaking up ground or each other. Actually, Doerfler is reaching to give Gold a helping hand with the shovel. All Georgetown's Councilmen, along with Fire Chief Rodney Montgomery, volunteer firemen, and city administrators were on hand Thursday morning for a groundbreaking for the new fire substation, which will be located at 212 Central Drive, beneath the west water tower.

seat on the fence and political writers are wondering when, if ever, he will move in and presumably tip the scales.

Over on the Democratic side Hubert H. Humphrey is said to be gearing up for his convention bid, while Jimmy Carter is still catching tons of flack because of his "ethnic purity" slip of the tongue. Next presidential primary test is in Pennsylvania and then on May 1 comes Texas!

A TOUGHER GUN LAW, mainly to put a cap on the manufacture, sale or importation of cheap pistols, was voted by the House Judiciary Committee Tuesday and sent to the House where opponents are all set to wreck or weaken it.

GEORGETOWN CITY COUNCIL met a $106,000 General Telephone hike request with a counter offer of $22,500 at Monday night's council meeting. The rate increases would involve both commercial and residential phone lines. One stipulation on the City offer is that the utility company provide a service number in Georgetown rather than in Bryan.

Area churches held a community worship service Good Friday at the First Baptist Church. Sponsored by the Georgetown Ministerial Alliance, the service featured the music of the crucifixion, a drama of the raising of the cross, and the service of "tennebrae."

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS passed a motion to begin a county juvenile probation program, but allowed no funding for the program. The motion stipulated that funding for the first year be obtained through the Criminal Justice Council. Commissioners said they did not know when the $14,000 grant would become available.

Dr. Jack Warner, superintendent of the Leander School District, now faces an investigative hearing by the school board to determine whether he broke district policy in the disciplining of Edwardo Hernandez. Warner faces assault charges brought by the Hernandez family. In addition, Warner's contract extension passed a week ago Monday, was rescinded by the board.

March city bills drop over $11,000 Kubiak advocates ad valorem ceiling

Georgetown's city bills for March dipped $11,041.91 from the February total, as the City Council authorized payment of $132,652.81 to 110 businesses and individuals Monday night. Last month's total was also $10,739.88 less than in January, when the city paid $143,392.69. The total February bill came to $143,757.72.

THE CITY'S LARGEST BILL, as usual, was from the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA), which charged Georgetown $100,379.92 for electricity. But even that bill was down $6,704.02 from February, when it was $107,083.94.

Councilmen authorized payment of the following bills with $123,368.62 from the city's Utility Fund, $9,284.19 from the General Fund.

Explaining the need for education today, State Representative Dan Kubiak expressed his views for changing the methods of funding education to the Georgetown Rotary Club Friday.

"I would not be here today, in the position I am in if I had not secured an education," said Kubiak.

He related that his father has only a seventh grade education and his mother only a third grade one, but four members of his family now have PhDs.

Money spent on per-person education a year is $1300, while the welfare system spends $2400 and the prison system spends $8000, he said. "If we educate the people, we won't have to worry about crime and welfare."

Texas spends $2.70 per day per child. "Nobody else could do it," he said. "But we have gone backwards in what the state should do for education."

"The ad valorem tax cannot carry the load," he said Texas has to find another way to finance the schools, claiming that the ad valorem tax puts the rural population against the city people.

He explained that 72% of the rural wealth is represented by real property that can now be taxed, but in the cities, 28% represents real property, and the rest represents intangibles.

"There are too many freeloaders with the ad valorem tax."

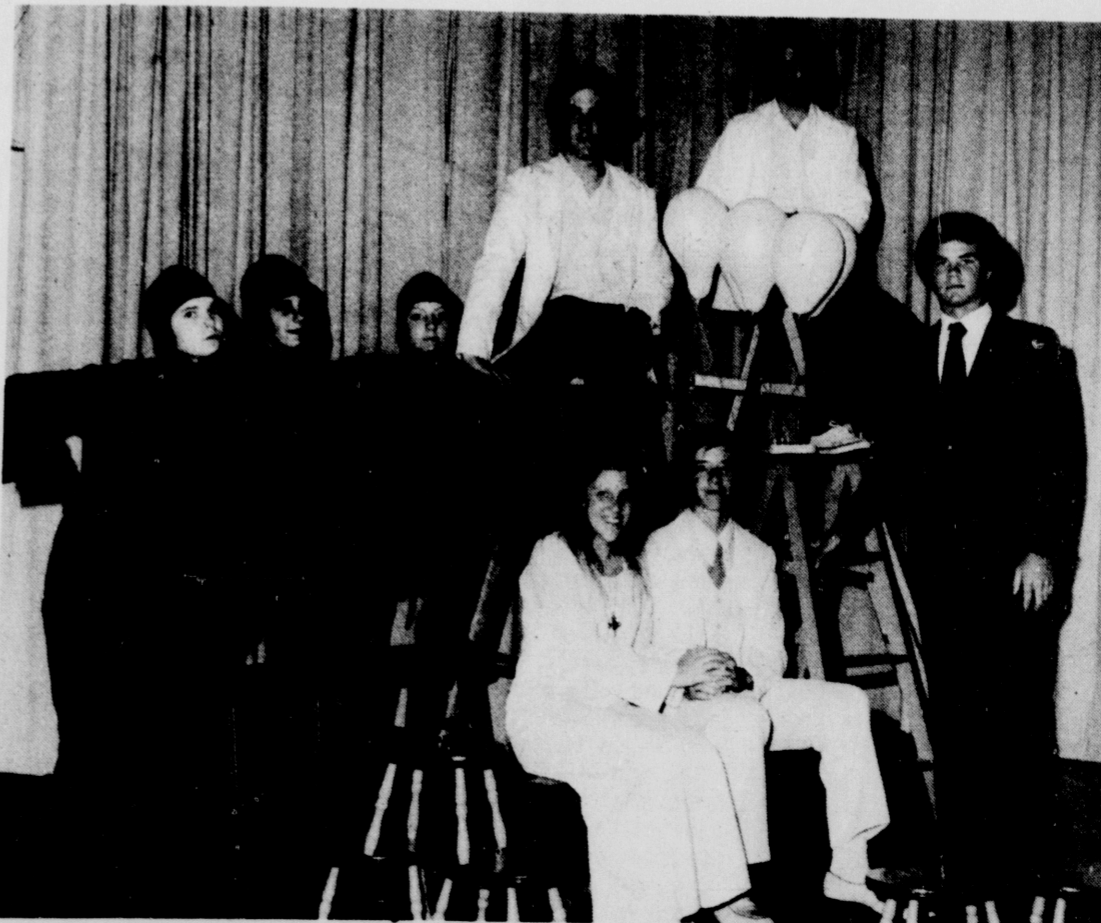

He suggested that Texas use part of the expected $2.6 billion surplus in taxes for the schools and put a ceiling on ad valorem tax. "I will not support any program unless there is a ceiling on ad valorem taxes," he said.

Kubiak has met with representatives from 55 counties in Texas and expects to go to every county in Texas before he meets with his education committee in June. From the meetings he is seeking suggestions for ways of financing schools.

He listed some of the suggestions as such:

- Incorporate a state income tax and abolish the ad valorem tax.
- Tax all imports into the state.
- Establish a refinery tax on all oil and gas going out of the state. He said Texas could realize $2 billion dollars from this method.
- Place a tax on severed non-productive mineral rights of land.
- Put a local option on sales tax for school districts.
- Put a four cent sales tax on the dollar for schools taxes and do away with the ad valorem tax. One group suggested exempting groceries from the four cent tax.

Georgetown High School dramatists are polishing their production of Archibald MacLeish's "J.B.", the story of a modern Job, in preparation for the University Interscholastic League's regional one-act play competition in Corpus Christi on April 22.

The play won first place in UIL district competition at Southwestern University on April 2, with five cast members winning zone and district honors.

"J.B." advanced to district competition from the zone meet that morning, along with a production by Coppas Cove High School, then won district that night.

Tami Treuhardt, Tobin Holden, Jeff Osborn, and Paul Minshaw were named to the Zone All-Star Cast, and Pat Martine won honorable mention as a Zone All-Star. The District All-Star cast included Treuhardt, Osborn, and Minshaw. Holden was named District Best Actor.

Also appearing in "J.B." are Missy Kingery, Lynn Parr, and Pattie Dedear.

The production is directed by Karen Tatum, with assistant directors Adrienne Holmans and Marty Beaver. Tom Sweazea handles sound for the play, and Joe Tays is the light man.
